

AIA CONTINUING EDUCATION: THE CASE FOR LIMITATIONS OF LIABILITY

Speaker Information:
Mark W. Jacobsen, P.S. AIA CES Provider

Mark Jacobsen is a Washington attorney who represents architects and engineers in all aspects of professional liability risk management, including:

- Contracts and contract negotiation
- Professional liability insurance coverage
- Licensure and regulatory compliance
- Design defect claim defense
- Project risk management and best practices
- Business law and planning, entity formation and support.

Event Information

Join us for a discussion of limitations of liability. Limitations of liability are almost always hotly contested points of negotiation in architecture and engineering contracts. Used effectively with other contract terms, limitations of liability fairly balance risk on projects, and across a design professional practice. In this course, participants will learn to draft and negotiate effective limitations of liability, appropriate to their projects and their practices.

This course is approved for 1LU/HSW

Learning Objectives

Participants will recognize and define different variations of liability limitations.

Participants will use the limitations of liability as a tool to fairly manage risk.

Participants will develop negotiation strategies regarding limitations of liability.

Participants will coordinate contract language to enhance the limitation of liability.
